In the summer, we always have a poor appetite. On the one hand, when the temperature rises, the needs of our bodies for the food energy will diminish. So we don’t need to eat too much food. On the other hand, the hot weather may make us get thirsty easily, and many people like to drink the carbonated beverage. As is known to us, the carbonated beverage is rich in sugar and we can get full soon. On this occasion, people would like eat more snack food instead of having meals at the table. Nevertheless, it may pose a serious health problem: overweight. So, to avoid the problem, we should have a balance and healthy daily diet.

1) Drink: Upon arrival in the summer, the burning hot weather makes people sweat easily and be liable to thirsty. Cold drink will be the first choice for people to quench their thirst. Actually, the drink especially the soft drink doesn’t really matter to quench the thirst as it contains much sugar. Soft drink may be tasty but we still feel thirsty. Now that we sweat a lot, some salt content of the body would also lose. So the best choice of drink had better be the boiled water with a little bit of salt. It can supplement the salt in our bodies and we won’t get thirsty.

2) Fruits: Fruits are necessary to our health. The most popular ones among fruits are definitely watermelons, which have an efficiency of clearing away summer heat. When we get thirsty, we can have watermelons instead of drinking water. Watermelons not only contain vitamins, but also are rich sources of glucose, glutamic acid, malic acid and so on. They are good to us. Going too far is as bad as not going far enough, so we should have a moderate in eating watermelons, otherwise, it will do harm to us. If you don’t sleep well at night, bananas can be a good choice. There is also a saying: “One apple a day keeps the doctor away.” Other fruits like strawberries, grapes and kiwi fruits are gorgeous as well.

3) Vegetables: As with the fruits, vegetables are closely related to our lives. Melon vegetables are more than 90% moisture content, and we need water replenishment in summer. Among this kind of vegetables are wax gourd, cucumbers, pumpkins, bitter gourds and the rest. Take bitter gourds for example, they can work up an appetite. But we should pay attention that bitter gourds can’t be eaten too much at a time.

4) Meats: Meats provide protein, which is indispensable for our health. Apart from pork, chicken and duck meat are good options, especially the duck meat. It can be cooked with sticky rice, and it contributes to enriching blood and nourishing the stomach. It can also be stewed with kelps and prevent heart disease. But do not have more beeves and mutton, they are “hot” food. If you eat too much, you will feel lit and get a nosebleed.

Some noticeable changes have taken place in people’s diet in recent years, experts remind us to bear in mind that proper proportion of different food groups is of vital importance for one’s health, so the best policy is to strike a balance in our diet. Having a healthy diet, it can help you keep the hot weather at bay and have a wonderful summer.

I & Pasta

I am a native of Shanxi loving Pasta so much especially for noodles. For me, for my family, for my neighbors, even for the whole people of city, noodles are considered as the best food that can make us feel happy. When eating noodles, we have a variety of fried vegetables. Before eating, we will mix them (fried vegetables and noodles) up, add a spoonful of vinegar and finally decorate with sill or coriander. The color and the great smell of noodles can quite stimulate your appetite. They love noodles, very anxious to eat noodles have three square meals a day.

In my life, my family is good at different kinds of noodles. My grandmother is good at LaMian (Ramen/ Hand-pulled noodles), she is pretty skillful because making LaMian needs pretty good skills. In a word, Rome wasn't built in a day. So we can imagine how hard to make it. My mother can make sliced noodles, it's perfect! Every time I eat it, I was moved almost to tears. I just feel full of happiness. And as for my boyfriend, the udon noodles he made are the most delicious udon noodles that I've ever tasted.

When I was a child, I remembered that my mother taught me how to make steamed bread, all I need to do just roll the dough into a ball, and then waited for 20 minutes to steam them. But what enjoyed me most was learning to make flour sculpture. When I make the dough, I can make it as all kinds of shapes, rabbits, mice, hedgehogs, turtles… as long as I could imagine. Until now when I recalled those days, I just can't stop laughing. The process is so interesting and I did learn the skills to make this delicious pasta.

Sliced Noodles (Cut Noodles) ——The Soul of Pasta

Because of its unique flavor, sliced noodles of Shanxi are known at home and abroad. Noodles are all cut by knife, so people name them Sliced Noodles or Cut Noodles. Sliced noodles particular stress the speed and shape. Chef stands before the pot to cut noodles, one hand holding the noodles, the other hand holding the knife to cut from the top down. Good cook can cut about two hundred times per minute. The length of each side leaves are exactly six inches. The noodles ear thick in the middle and thin in edge, and they are as slim as willow leaves. Soft and not sticky, the more chewing the more fragrant are the features of Sliced Noodles.

How to make a bowl of Sliced Noodles by your own*?*

Main ingredients:

flour, water(the best proportion is 10:4.5)

Process:

1. Put the flour and water together to make dough.
2. Use adequate amount of dough and change them into cylindrical shape.
3. Use a knife to cut the cylindrical dough. After boiling for 3 minutes, you can enjoy the Sliced Noodles.

Flour Sculpture

Hundreds of years ago, while making food, people had tried to make it beautiful, as well as delicious. They made the steamed bread or other kinds of cake into different shapes. And these cakes and bread are the so-called" flour sculpture" today. There are mainly three types of flour sculptures in Shanxi, namely White Flour Sculpture, Colored Flour Sculpture, and Baked Flour Sculpture.

Life is a long journey, leads to your destiny

"We all have two lives… The life we know and another one, that lies waiting for us."

Do you believe in destiny? Maybe not. Then, have you ever confused about your life path? Have you ever doubted on the decisions you used to make? I bet you have, we all do. Then you may find an answer in the book "The Strange Journey Of Mr. Daldry".

By: Zhang Yao 110909221 Class 2

The story is about a young perfume mixer Alice, she is really passionate about what she is doing yet she living an ordinary prosaic life. Usually she spends the late night chatting with her friends but received much complaints from her cantankerous neighbor Mr. Daldry. During an outing to Brighton on Christmas Eve a fortuneteller's words completely changed Alice's life. Alice has never believed in soothsayers or destiny but she cannot stop thinking about the old woman's words. Later Alice starts her adventure to Istanbul accompanied by Mr. Daldry.

Open this book, it makes me kind of feeling like start an adventure of myself. Sometimes word has the power to attract you in and at that moment, it's you, standing by Alice, with all beautiful scenery filled in eyes. Marc Levy the delicate brushwork of the picturesque scenes in Istanbul make it so real. You can smell the flowers and spices in a single word, you can see the crowd and winding streets in each line, even you can hear the bustle of hawkers, a hubbub from the crowd. After meeting six men, love leads Alice to Mr. Daldry and finally found out her lost past. So, the opinion in this novel is quite interesting, seems like in an instant, a little decision could twist your life to an entirely disparate situation.

After finishing the book, I just can not stop to think about my own life, how I made all my decisions and is that the power lead me to this way, make me who I am. Is there really an another life waiting for me? But now let’s just imagine, one day when you are walking on the street, someone comes along to your way, suddenly, you feel so familiar and comfortable about this guy, you even thinking about say hi to him and see what will happen. But you hesitate, you act like it’s stupid and there is no such thing as destiny. So you smile at each other and then, just walk away. Time goes by, life become dull and utterly pointless. Memories take you back to old days, somehow that smile crossed your mind, and you just realized as the moment you passed by, a same feelings on his face, strange but familiar.

Or maybe like this, when you still young, you try to adventure, try to do something different, yet your parents and friends persuade you like you are trying to ruin your life. So you think, maybe this is your fate, maybe this is how life goes. After years and years, you found there are some people, live a more liberal life you dreamed about. So you start thinking that if there was a chance you could live a totally different life. If you had picked the other way, maybe now you are climbing the Alps, feeling the wind fight on your face, hurt but real, touching the snow on the ground, cold but pure, not sitting in the couch, eating popcorn and watching the boring shows . If you had chosen the another path, maybe now you are walking along la seine, watching the sunrise, waiting for the sunset. Your life may filled with conversations and daydreaming, travel and adventure, pleasantly surprised in carelesslydescends. Not standing behind the window watching people going by, sighing of your life and you deserve a better one.

So you see, where your road leads, determined by every moment you are experiencing. What I'm deeply thinking about is if every point could be the bend in the road, what can be your guiding light through this long and winging life? You may still not believe destiny, but I'll say what you are doing is your destiny. It is not arranged by anyone but your heart. I Truly believe the anther life do exist but the only one thing could indicate you is to follow your heart, live your life. It is simply to say but many people could not do it even once in their whole life. So just think even for one minute, listen to your inner voice, are you willing to let others eyes erode your life, or following your heart into your freewheeling world.

The First Man Of The American Country Music

American country music originated in the southern American Appalachian Mountains, can be traced back to the 1920's. Vernon Dalhart, may have been forgotten by most people, but he is the first big star in this field. He came to country music from outside the tradition, becoming a national star in the years . He made a great contribution to the American country music.

By:Mo Zhou 120101108 Class 4

Dalhart was born in a cow family in the eastern state of Texas Marion TrySlaughter. Though his classical-music background is often emphasized in accounts of his life, he did actually work for a time as a cowboy while in his teens. Dalhart sang at community gatherings, where he also played the harmonica and the jews harp. He studied music at the Dallas Conservatory, married, and moved to New York in 1910. Dreaming of an operatic career, he worked in a music store and earned extra cash singing for funerals. Dalhart was a keen observer of the early power of the phonograph industry and jumped at the chance to record.His first releases, made around 1916, fell into various pop styles.From 1916 to 1923, using numerous pseudonyms, he made over 400 recordings of light classical music and early dance band vocals for various record labels. He was already an established singer when he made his first country music recordings which cemented his place in music history.

When he turned to country music, it may have been simply a way of capitalizing on a song type that his competitors had neglected, but he immediately showed a flair for story songs. After The Wreck of the Old 97 became a smash hit, Dalhart was a national star of sorts – he was never a really recognizable figure, but he could sell records in the millions.

While some country music purists always viewed Dalhart with some suspicion because of his light opera background and a vocal style that was closer to pop than country, he was inducted into the Nashville Songwriters Hall of Fame in 1970, into the Country Music Hall of Fame in 1981, and into the Gennett Records Walk of Fame in 2007.

He Yi 121105325 Class 4

Although it is known to us all that daily diet plays a significant role in keeping fit, many people are not aware of the fact that the nutrients we receive from food do have a lot of things to do with its colour actually. Therefore, I'd love to introduce a health tip about colourful diet to all of you, which means to choose food from different colour and have them together.

Since you might be wondering about in what way are the food and its colour related, I'd say that not only can it offer a wider range of nutrients, but it also has the power to arouse our appetite by the fancy appearance.

Now, I'm going to give some specific examples of colourful diet so as to help you understand the idea better.

Red/Pink

Food of this color might help reduce the risk of prostate cancer, since they contain strong antioxidants that would end up helping protect both our heart and cells. Fruits like red apple, strawberry, raspberry, pomegranate, red grape, cherry, cranberry, watermelon are in this category, and some vegetables such as beet, red pepper, tomato are included as well.

Green
Asparagus, cucumber, broccoli, lettuce, pea, even green apple and pepper, these fruits and vegetables get their appearance from a pigment called chlorophyll. Some greens like cabbage can protect us against cancer, not to mention that broccoli, along with spinach, is especially good for your heart and may reduce the risk of birth defects.

White
Fruits and vegetables of this color have pigments that can lower cholesterol and blood pressure, which results in reducing the risk of stomach cancer and heart disease. Some also provide a good source of potassium. Fruits and vegetables included in this group are banana, potato, coconut, onion, mushroom, ginger, garlic, and cauliflower.

Orange/Yellow
Beta-carotene has healthy benefits because when digested it is converted to vitamin A. This helps us maintain healthy eyes, which can also improve the function of our immune system, and may reduce the risk of cancer and heart disease as well. Some common fruits and vegetables of this color are pineapple, cantaloupe, orange, lemon, mango, apricot, sweet potato, and corn.

Blue/Purple
These fruits and vegetables get their colour from a pigment which act as powerful antioxidants to protect cells, so that it can improve the function of your memory, even reduce the risk of cancer, stroke, and so forth. Some delicious blue or purple fruits and vegetables that you can choose to add to your diet are blueberry, blackberry, purple grape, plum, prune, raisin, fig and eggplant.

When it comes to my point of view, eating is always an exciting experience for everybody. It’s something that we are involved with every single day. While what’s frustrating these days is that we don’t even have time to look at our food due to tight schedule or something. But I do want to recommend that we all take time to enjoy the food and take care of what we are putting into our body.

So next time when you are at the grocery store, bear the tremendous benefits of colourful diet in your mind, and be sure to pick up a beautiful rainbow to keep you healthy and delighted at the same time.
