

Sweet potato as my sweetheart!

Whenever coming across any snack that contains sweet potato, I would seize the chance to taste those represented by my hometown.

He Yi 121105325 Class 4

There's no doubt that Hangzhou is an incredibly beautiful city, yet the idea that one's hometown is always the best place in the world perhaps has deeply rooted in our mind. Though it may seem kind of strange to foreigners, that's what happens in China.

Brought up in a small county where sweet potatoes are grown here and there, I have got used to having sweet potato congee as breakfast since I'm a little child, but I would never believe this simple snack could mean that much to me before leaving my hometown for the campus I'm in now.

Attending college took me to a brand new journey compared to my past 18 years, and so does everybody else I suppose, which filled my life with a lot of exciting experiences at first, while as time flies, the thrilled feelings died away and homesickness began haunting and took up my heart.

Hence, whenever coming across some food relating to sweet potatoes, I would seize the opportunity to taste those snacks represented by my hometown. Now I'm going to tell you an interesting anecdote about it.

The other day I came across a bowl of sweet potato congee in a small restaurant of Xiasha (there's a fantastic picture above demonstrating it); what's dramatic is that I was recalled of my sweet memory at home immediately, to illustrate, I seemingly saw the scene of my warm-hearted grandma offering others with hot congees and preparing delicacies for me as well, which was actually the waitress handing out dishes and serving the customers around, then something awkward happened when I called out my little brother's nickname loudly, due to the thought that I'm already at home. Of course everybody stopped to watch me as if I was nuts, which drove me blush at once.

Anyway, these special experiences did not get me out of sweet potatoes, if any, even added to my love of them for restoring those sweet old days to me. Therefore, it's natural to draw the conclusion that sweet potatoes have become my sweetheart in reality.

Meanwhile, the main purpose of my writing this article is to call for your attention on the tremendous benefits that eating sweet potatoes will bring, because not only can it provide us with various nutrition, but arouse our appetite by its attractive appearance. Besides simple starches, raw sweet potatoes are rich in complex carbohydrates, dietary fiber and beta-carotene, while having moderate contents of other micronutrients, including vitamin B5, vitamin B6, and the like.

The following study may illustrate the incredible effect of sweet potatoes better for you.

A 2012 study of 10,000 households in Uganda found that 50% of children who ate normal sweet potatoes suffered from vitamin A deficiency compared with only 10% of those on the high beta carotene variety. Also, The Center for Science in the Public Interest has compared the nutritional value of sweet potatoes to other foods. Considering fiber content, complex carbohydrates, protein, vitamin A and potassium, the sweet potato ranked highest in nutritional value.

☐☐The Tea

Tea, one of the three major beverages of the world (the other two are coffee and cocoa), is called "Cha" in its homeland country, China. As the old saying goes, "Seven necessary supplies on the life: bavin, rice, oil, salt, sauce, vinegar and tea", tea is regarded as one of the most important things in daily life in ancient China. China has formed profound culture of tea. When tea was introduced to Europe, British fall in love with this drink and created the unique English tea culture- European afternoon tea.

By □ Ruiyin Fang 120909123 Class 2

The origin and of tea

As it's known to all, China is the origin country of tea, it was in the South-West part of China that tea-shrubs were first found. However, dispute still remains on the exact time Chinese began to drink tea. The time Chinese discovered tea can be date back to some 4700 years ago, the earliest record of tea are some legends of Yan Emperor, the god of agriculture, who was know to have invented agriculture and medicine. According to one of them, Yan Emperor tasted hundreds of herb, one day when he was hit by 72 kinds of poisons, he discovered the tea tree luckily and used the tea leaves to neutralize all poisons. From then on, tea was regarded as a healthy drink.

Chinese tea

Since each place has its own climate and proper geographic feature, residents of different places enjoy various kinds of tea. Tea can be divided into 6 kinds according to different technics: green tea, black tea, oolong tea, white tea, yellow tea and dark tea (brick tea). Strangely, black tea is called red tea in Chinese, and dark tea is called black tea. Different kinds of tea have its special taste and smell, and furthermore, traditional Chinese doctor believe each kind of tea have a particular property and action to built our body.

Chinese tea culture

It's a traditional manners to make tea for friends when they come for a visit. Nowadays, many shop owners will set an expensive root carving tea table with tea set in their shop, invite their consumer to sit at the table and make a cup of tea for them. It is more than a business.

In Chinese, we don't say "drinking tea" but say "savoring tea". When brewing tea, there are first brewing, second brewing, third brewing... Each brewing has its own taste, the slight differences cannot be told but being savored slowly. You will find one maybe more mellow while one is lighter, one is bitter while one is a bit of sweet. I still remember when I was in the junior high school, a teacher made tea for me, he told me there were seven brewing in the flow and if I can understand it, I understand life.

At first, the tea is light and insipidity, I thought it was the baby time; Then it became sweet, I believe it means the joyful childhood; When the tea is mellow, I guessed it was during the prime of one's life; Then the tea became bitter, maybe it referred the low ebb of life; At last, the water was insipidity again and it was time to enjoy peace when you're old. Though the teacher did not tell the correct answer, I recall the seven brewing of life every time I savoring tea, maybe until I am old.

Savoring tea is not only a way to enjoy the drink, but also a way to enjoy the life. My father has a set of tea set made of delicate china, he really enjoy brewing tea with them. Though it's a little troublesome, the taste is different from the tea brewed in the glass. He doesn't think it waste his time but regard it as snatching a bit of leisure from a busy schedule.

The spread of tea in Britain

In 17th century, Chinese tea adopted formally into the European market by Portugal and Netherlands through trades. Since then, tea became an important Chinese export and many western countries had joined the ranks of Chinese tea consumption, but only England formed its own tea culture system.

British began to drink tea during the mid-17 century. It was princess Catherine of Portugal that brought the tea-drinking to the English royal court after she married Charles II in 1662. And the fashion soon spread beyond these elite circles to the middle classes.

Afternoon tea

While Chinese enjoy various kinds of tea, black is the most popular tea in Britain. They prefer some milk, lemon or sugar in the black tea to make milk tea and lemon tea. In the past, tea is not cheap and often adulterated with leaves from other plants, which made it more affordable but much less pleasant. These led to the popularity in black tea, and a parallel increase in the addition of milk to tea.

Afternoon tea was invented by Anna Maria, the wife of the seventh Duke of Bedford. In 1841 she started drinking tea and having a bite to eat in the mid-afternoon. Since there is a gap of 6 hours between lunch and dinner, most people felt hungry before dinner and the fashion for afternoon tea had become widespread.

Traditional afternoon tea usually use Darjeeling, Earl Gray and Ceylon, served in delicate bone china or silver teapot, tea cup, dessert plate. Dessert is an important part of afternoon tea, which is served on a three-story plate, various sandwiches with cheese and ham are on the first story, second story are usually scone, the traditional dessert in Britain, and the third story is cakes and fruit towers. These desserts should be eaten from bottom to top, from salty to sweet.

Afternoon tea is more than a habit but also an important social activity in the past. Nowadays, it also becomes an attitude of life- delicate and elegance, it reveals the slow down culture, everything stopped for the tea, just enjoy your own tranquil time.

Bangers and Mash – a very traditional British meal!

Growing up in the UK you can't avoid eating this very traditional meal made from sausages, mashed potato and onion gravy. In the popular imagination it was so important that Desperate Dan, a comic book character from my childhood, always finished each story with a large plate of Bangers & Mash.

By: Roy Hanney

Often eaten with peas or even baked beans this meal has to be a staple for food for the English. Even if your mother never cooked it certainly you would find this food on any cafe or pub menu. Where ever you eat it though, you need mustard preferably hot English mustard though the milder German or French will do at a push.

The term “bangers” apparently comes from before World War II and may even go as far back as 1919. It seems that back then there was a food shortage due to the war and sausages were made with water. Consequently, if you cooked them they were likely to explode like a firework. Thankfully modern sausages don't do this.

In 1961 film stars Peter Sellers and Sophie Loren recorded a song praising this so British food singing “No wonder you're so bony Joe, and skinny as a rake. Well then, give us a bash at the bangers and mash me mother used to make”. So how can you make this dish? Well its very simple and all you have to do is follow the instructions below. It's also very cheap and takes around 20 minutes!

What you need:

- Sausages
- Potatoes
- Peas
- Onions

- Milk
- Butter
- Black Pepper
- Instant Gravy

What you need to do:

1. Peel and boil the potatoes, when they are soft mash them to a smooth paste adding milk, butter and black pepper.
2. Make up the instant gravy by adding boiling water to a few spoonfuls of gravy mix.
3. Fry the onions in a pan and add the sausages. Cook till brown and the onions are golden. Then pour over the gravy and let it simmer.
4. Boil a pan of water and add the peas. When they are cooked drain them and they are ready to serve.

Serve on a plate nice and hot and indulge in what can only be described as 'comfort food' and imagine you are back in Blighty (a nickname for England) eating in a local cafe, at home eating your mothers cooking or even better – at school eating in the canteen. The better the sausages the better the taste of the meal so try and get some good ones.

The Guilin rice noodles:

Special Noodles for Special You

When it comes to Japan, we might think of the sushi. When referring to America, we will have hamburgers in mind. While talking about Korea, kimchi must be the symbol food of the country. The same case, when we mention Guilin, a city in Guangxi of China, the Guilin rice noodles will occur to us at once. There is a diverse range of food in different countries. The story I write is about the local special food in Guangxi, Guilin-Guilin rice noodles. It will tell you the origin and features of Guilin rice noodles. In addition, you can also learn some cooking methods from the story, especially for someone who adores the food.

By: Fang Ming    120112103    Class 2

You might ask, "Are the Guilin rice noodles different from others?" The answer to it is Yes. Guilin rice noodles have their own features. There are a lot of legends about the origin of Guilin rice noodles, and they're kind of mysterious. In fact, the history of Guilin rice noodles would date back to the Qin dynasty. The first emperor of Qin, Yingzheng, moved his armies south to have a fight. Because of the large difference of north and south, the soldiers of north are unaccustomed to the food in south. They liked wheaten food, however, south is teem with rice not wheat. To solve the problem, the cooks made the rice into wheaten food by squeezing them out like noodles. It's said that the rice noodles were made by the Yao nationality, one of the minorities of China. So the Guilin rice noodles came into being. Soldiers used to eat the special noodles with medicine soup to keep healthy, and the medicine soup is the rudiment of brine nowadays.

The brine of Guilin rice noodles consists of fennel, orange peels, anise, betel nuts, liquorice and the rest which can treat the disease. There is no doubt that the Guilin rice noodles are benefit to our health. Because of the difference in seasoning and cooking methods, it can be classified as rice noodles with braised food, rice noodles with lettuce and rice noodles with beef brisket and so on.

It's easy to cook the Guilin rice noodles at home. You can buy the rice noodles directly from markets or noodles shops. You should prepare some brine and vegetables, you might also buy the specially-made brine from the shops. There are several simple methods to make the dish:

- 1) Scald the rice noodles in boiling water, and you should stir them with chopsticks at the same time.
- 2) Ladle the noodles out into the bowl.
- 3) Add some brine and vegetables into the noodles, you can sprinkle other relish in accordance with your taste. In Guilin, we usually add some acid kidney beans or bamboo shoots.

So the dish is on the well. It's quite delicious as well as healthy and it's worth tasting. As the saying goes that "Guilin's scenery is the best in the world". So you will also enjoy the attraction of the city's food.

The Guilin rice noodles shops can be found everywhere in China. An increasing number of people know about the rice noodles and the city, Guilin. The festival of Guilin rice noodles has been held annually since 2007. It's combined with tourism and culture. It plays a dominant role in cultural communication. If you have a chance to travel to Guangxi, you might as well enjoy the special food—Guilin rice noodles. If you are interested in it, you can search some information about the Guilin rice noodles via the link.

The different eating habit from China and western countries

In china, there are all kinds of foods from different series. As we all know, the northern are feed on noodle, like dumplings, steamed bun and the southerner are feed on rice, like zongzi and other dessert, they are very delicious. In western country, they like eating beef and bread or other meat. Chinese people only have three meals during a day. But western people will have more, they have afternoon tea. Usually they would have fruits, homemade cake, tea (black tea) or biscuit with cheese. If you are a housewife and have a lot of time, you may have morning tea as well.

By JingYu Zhang, 131002129, class 2

In china, there are all kinds of foods from different series. Usually they would have fruits, homemade cake, tea (black tea) or biscuit with cheese. If you are a housewife and have a lot of time, you may have morning tea as well.

Also, there is also a huge difference between Chinese and Western people. Chinese people use chopsticks and western people use fork and knife. Usually people who use fork and knife will use fork to hold the meat and cut it by knife and use fork to help to get that piece of meat into mouse. Chinese just use chopstick to pick things and pass it into your mouse. In addition, Chinese people choose food very carefully. They only use fresh material to make food. For example they only eat fresh fish. Chinese have a lot of ideas and techniques for cooking. We can cook a chicken in over ten ways. That's why Chinese food is so popular in the world. Western country like English or American, they don't have fresh food because they buy their food from supermarket which only sells stored materials. Western people would also prefer fast food like burgers and chips. They are unhealthy to human body. Western people do not have many skills for cooking, mostly they only boil, steam and bake the food. By the way, western people are very good at making desert and chocolate. They can make very good cake and chocolate. They are very sweet but it's sort of food which make you become fat quickly.

In china if you invite people for meal, the person who invited other people would pay for the meal but it's not the way in Western country. In western country people will think you only invited me but it's not your responsibility to pay for me. I can afford it. They won't be happy if you pay for them. People in China would always put dishes into customer's plate to show their hospitality, but they will think it's not healthy because your chopsticks have been used by you. In western country like America not England, people will always give tips to waiter after they finished meal in a restaurant. If you don't they will not be happy because tips are one of their major income. In china this only happen in some top restaurants and hotels in large international cities like Beijing, Shanghai and Guangzhou. Western people will also think you are rude if you make sound during the meal. Western people do not hold their bowl up even when they have a bowl of soup.

Cantonese morning tea

Zao Cha, or morning tea, is the typical morning activity in the daily life of Canton people . When you waking up in the morning with the singing of the birds, having a cup of tea to refresh breath and oneself, tasting snacks to stimulate a good appetite, it is really a fantastic life!

By:Yangshangrong 130307212 Class 4

Brief introduction

When I checked the previous photo, I can see a girl was eating the chicken feet and smiling. Her mouth still covered with broths. So hilarious! Yes, that's me. Maybe it was my first memory about morning tea. As a Cantonese, morning tea is not only a diet, moreover it is a special habit for us. Until today, when I go home, my mom will call my aunt and meet together. It is an opportunity to narrow our distance. Sure, to our teenager, we won't be interested in the topic which they talk about, we always taste the delicious food.

Let's talk about the morning tea. When referring to the traditional Canton culture, morning tea culture can not be missed. On the morning of weekends especially some holidays, Cantonese will begin their morning tea activity. Generally, the morning tea will be joined by a whole family or a group of good friends. In Cantonese idea, morning tea is an enjoyable thing which can spend leisure time and relax selves thoroughly.

Thus the name "morning tea", tea is the necessary part. Morning tea prefers to take the black tea because it functions to warm the stomach and be an advantage for digesting. The common tea used in morning tea will be oolong tea, tieguanyin tea, pu'er tea. The black tea is in a little bitter taste and not as crystal as the green tea, but it is the golden pair for snacks in morning tea.

Snacks Served in Morning Tea

Actually morning tea refers to dim sum, a Cantonese term referring to small Chinese dishes, accompanied by tea. So having morning tea is also called “eating morning tea” in Guangdong.

There are two kinds of morning tea – the solid ones and the liquid ones. The solid ones can be Chinese dumpling, steamed buns, glutinous food, etc, and the liquid ones can be porridge, guiling jelly, beancurd jelly, etc.

Compared with solid ones and liquid ones, the former ones can be regarded as the highlight of Canton morning tea. For example, the representative – shrimp dumpling (you can find this dish in any restaurant that serves morning tea in Guangdong, and it can be regarded as a simple of authentic Guangdong restaurants). The transparent dumpling wrapper with the shrimp materials inside will bring you a fresh taste. Besides, the egg tart which can be found in some high-end restaurants will let you have an unforgettable feeling when enjoy it.

Origin of morning tea

Morning tea culture now is not only popular in Canton area, but also an oversea trend because of the more and more overseas Chinese. It is easily to find Canton morning tea restaurants in New York or Los Angeles, even in the remote islet in South Pacific Ocean.

When it comes to the source of the Cantonese morning tea, it often dates back to Qing dynasty which can be traced back to more than 150 years ago. At that time, there was a simple teashop called "one house", offering tea and snacks for those seeking refreshment, which had a board with "tea word" on the door. Later on, with the boom of commerce on Guangdong, more and more businessmen needed a place for social activities. Teahouses soon began to emerge and developed gradually into tea restaurants.

Although with the rapid development of the economy in Guangdong Province, this kind of traditional culture was still excellent maintained, and now it becomes a beautiful scenery line and the great symbol in Cantonese leisure life.
