Nepal is a peaceful and mysterious place, so in recent years, more and more Chinese people prefer travel to Nepal. This movie is about the journey of a group of Chinese people, where romantic story of a young couple happened.

There is traditional religious belief in Nepal, people here are more likely to gain the peace of the soul. People and animals can get along with each other happily here, such as elephants and people can play together in the river, people don't have to worry that the elephant can attack them.

Some beautiful scenery in Nepal more desirable, and people here are very enthusiastic, they will provide the best food and service. Because the distance is close to China, it has become the first vacation choice of Chinese passengers.

With respect to the film, why it is called “up in the wind”? Many people are confused of that, but it has also become the highlight.

At first, the main character in the movie travel to Nepal very reluctantly because they think that poverty and regional conflict happens often in Nepal, where is not safe in the other words. But in the process of travel, they gradually discover the beauty of this small country.

The tour group to the happiest country in the world – Nepal, began the “journey of happiness”. From the beginning of the tour group nuisance, and shortly after building group in situ dissolution, the hotel is a power failure midnight cry, alone in the top of the mountain inn, a local riots and so on a series of events in the process of travel group members look after each other and understand each other, everyone showed the most true to yourself.

The last day, Wang Can please everyone go paragliding. When several people standing on a cliff, carrying umbrellas tension when can we take off, coach, pointing across the mountains to the Woods to tell them: don’t worry, we have to wait for the wind. When the wind shakes the forest, everybody successfully soared into the sky. When circling in the sky, and everyone’s heart, there’s a slight sigh, traveling along the way, his life, in fact, are not in a hurry to make any decision or change. When you stand at the precipice of life, better do not move, do not rush forward to do perhaps, but quietly, waiting for the winds to.

Nepal is to give people spiritual peace, everyone here can get the safety of the soul. Life is of harmony and freedom to this land of livings. As the movie says, “people will feel stupid, because of ignorance temporarily make your heart covered with a layer of dust, which does not matter, there will always be blown open day.”

If you feel confused, come to Nepal, let your heart up in the wind.
